Going into the last three races of the year, the 2019 Street Stock championship points race has turned into one of the best in the track's 24-season history. The top three in the championship standings – Smith, Luke Dodd of Riverside and Temecula's Blaine Whitson – are only separated by four points. Six-time champ Dodd sits on top of the heap with 106-points. Smith is two-points behind with 104. Whitson, who finished no worse than second in the first four races of the year, but who has finished last in the past two races, is third on 102.

Saturday's show will feature heat races and a main event. The first green flag will fly at 7:30. For fans who want to come early and enjoy the fair, gates will open at 11:00 A.M. After the races, the popular Christian band "Kutless" will be in concert on the main stage.
